NOTES

Llanfair Talhaiarn

People in the village said it (the village) is not as Welsh in outlook as most villages in North Wales, particularly two villages immediately to the west - Llangernyw and Llansannan.

Sam Meillteyrn

Meillteyrn is actually Sam Meillteyrn, and is known as Sam in the area. Many words ending in -en - e.g. mellten, draenen, coeden - are pronounced [an]. Similarly for -ell, -el.

Trefor

The centre of Anglesey is very Welsh, but many English people now live on its coasts. Trefor is very small, no more than a dozen houses.

Notes on interviews and transcription notes on tape quality and informants on cassettes themselves.

LL.T.H., Miss Roberts - answered questionnaire in English mostly; her Welsh responses are given priority over English equivalents if the Welsh was freely volunteered; if a Welsh response was specifically asked for, after the English had already been given, this is recorded as a double answer.

S.M., T., Mr. Phillips, Mr. Hughes, Mrs. Jones - questionnaire answered in Welsh; where the term "suggested word" is used, this means the word was suggested in English, but the response given in Welsh.
A second interview was recorded with Mr. Phillips, to clarify certain items from the first.
The end of the interview with Mr. Hughes is followed by a couple of questions which were accidentally missed out. Mrs. Jones answered questions that Mr. Hughes failed on, marked ⓧ in books.

each Welsh response is given a (sometimes rough) English translation on the "remarks" lines.

Welsh tenses are constructed using auxiliary "to be" followed by the infinitive of the verb - hence most of the verbs recorded are infinitives.

many responses are in mutated form - the un-mutated form is given on the reference line, unless the word occurs as part of a phrase.

table of mutations :

initial / radical	soft mut.	nasal mut.	aspirate mut.
C	G	Ngh	Ch
P	B	Mh	Ph
T	D	Nh	Th
G	—	Ng	—
B	F	M	—
D	Dd	N	—
M.	F	—	—
Ll	L	—	—
Rh	R	—	—

I am not familiar with some of the Welsh responses (neither is the dictionary) – in some cases I'm not too sure about (~~its~~) an actual form or spelling. These are followed by a question mark in pencil. Perhaps you could check them against other localities in North Wales.

notes on my phonetics ɪ = I ɷ = ʊ r = rolled ɾ = flapped

ɹ = frictionless continuant
ɬ = Welsh ll ̥ - devoicing
̬ - voicing ̪ - dental ̠ - retraction ̟ - advanced ̈ - centralisation
— - dividing syllables
x = Welsh ch ˔ - raised ˕ - lowered

[q] [G] – uvular plosives – only used once each, instead of [k] [g], when it was felt the uvular quality was especially strong
